

BLAME WEATHER, DOUBLE PARKING IN KESSEL DEATH

Local Man Crushed Between 2 Trucks On December 19.

EARL TRIMMER EXONERATED

After deliberating 45 minutes Monday afternoon, a coroner's jury returned a verdict which virtually relieves Earl Trimmer, 24, Carlisle street, of blame for the accident which resulted in the death of Seymour Kessel, 22, West Middle street coal truck driver, on the evening of December 19.

In the verdict the jury stated that Kessel had died from internal injuries received when he was crushed between a G. R. Thompson and son coal truck and a Gettysburg ice and storage company delivery truck. "The collision was, in our opinion, the result of double parking of the coal truck and bad weather conditions which caused poor driving visibility," the verdict concluded.

The inquest was conducted in the grand jury room at the court house after the coroner had taken the jury to the scene of the accident where the two trucks were again placed in the positions they occupied the evening of the accident. The jury heard testimony as to their relative positions. At the court house seven witnesses were heard and a voluntary statement made by Earl Trimmer. Taking of the testimony occupied nearly two hours.

Trimmer testified that he had left the ice and storage plant about 5:15 o'clock the evening of the accident and had made a delivery on Breckenridge street. He was returning to the plant by Washington street when his truck figured in the fatal collision. Trimmer stated that the headlights of his truck were burning as he drove north toward the West Middle street intersection at a speed of about 16 miles an hour.

About the middle of the block in which the Thompson truck was parked, Trimmer recalled that he had met a south-bound car and the lights of that machine had blinded him to "a certain extent." When the lights of that car had passed he saw the parked truck, although it bore no illuminated tail light, Trimmer asserted. As he raised his foot to touch the brake pedal, he saw Kessel walk back of the coal truck and into the path of his own vehicle. After striking Kessel, Trimmer said that he backed his truck a few feet and then went to the assistance of Kessel who had dropped to the street.

Trimmer told the jury that he had examined the rear of the truck and he was certain that there was no tail light burning at the time of the accident. After the collision, the endgate of the Thompson truck was down but Trimmer said he was not certain of its position before being struck. The delivery truck driver recalled that driving conditions were bad the evening of the accident—rain was falling and the streets were covered with several inches of slush.

Says Truck Lights Were Burning
The jury was told by Trimmer that he was certain a car had been parked between the Thompson truck and the curb. On cross-examination he said that he had been about 15 or 20 feet from Kessel when he first saw the man and that his truck had skidded when he applied the brakes. Trimmer told also of going to the hospital with Kessel. There he placed Kessel's leg in a more comfortable position at the victim's request and then Kessel murmured "Thanks, friend"—his last words.

Trimmer's testimony was at variance in several points with statements made earlier in the hearing by Miss Lillian Bowling, 16, 227 South Washington street. The girl said she had passed the Thompson truck just a few seconds before she heard the crash. As she passed she stated that she noticed Kessel standing at the rear of his truck. She asserted that both the tail and headlights of the parked truck were illuminated. Kessel was facing his own truck with his back to the oncoming vehicle. A few steps after she had passed Kessel, she stated she heard the crash and heard Kessel groan. She was frightened and did not immediately return to the accident.

Officer Charles W. Culp, Jr., of the borough police, who investigated the accident with Constable Glenn Guise, told of the results of his probe of the accident. He described the damage to the front of the ice and storage company truck.

STOLEN VENDING MACHINE FOUND

Police Recover Apparatus Along Gettysburg-Harrisburg Highway.

The cigarette vending machine which was stolen early the morning of December 24 from the City Service gasoline station on Buford avenue was recovered over the weekend, local police revealed today. The machine had been broken open and the cash and cigarettes removed. It was found along the Gettysburg-Harrisburg road in the vicinity of Twin Bridges, police say.

Constable Glenn Guise was notified that the machine had been seen along the highway. He brought the battered apparatus to Gettysburg. It is now being stored at the local substation of the state police. The state troopers have been asked to assist in the investigation of the theft.

The vending apparatus was taken last week after a thief or thieves had broken open a sheltered side window of the service station.

E. Keyser and children, Margaret, Stephen, Robert, Nancy, William and Frederick, and Mrs. Harrison Runkle, Gettysburg.

COMMISSIONER DOUBTS LEGALITY OF PAY INCREASE

Political Accusations Heard at Meeting Today; Gave Solicitor Salary Boost.

LITTLE BUSINESS IS TRANSACTED

Charging County Commissioner Mervin H. Benner, republican, with betraying his political party in the matter of making appointments and demanding that he and Commissioner Edgar C. McDannell, democrat, explain their haste in "rail-roading" through a $300 salary raise of County Solicitor J. Donald Swope last week, S. Luther Baltzley, president of the board of county commissioners, re-opened the matter of Swope's resignation and re-employment with a 60 per cent increase in salary when the commissioners gathered at 9 o'clock this morning for their weekly session.

For the most part Commissioners Benner and McDannell sat quiet through President Baltzley's remarks. Benner ventured to explain that the increase in salary had been backed by him "on the advice of an attorney."

Baltzley snapped back "Yes, an attorney advised you to raise his salary, and you did it." Benner replied, "Well, Swope thought he deserved it because there is more work to do now since all the tax liens have to be entered by the tax collector." Then the president of the board wanted to know what Swope had done during the last year to earn the $500 he was paid for 1936.

News of the resignation and prompt re-election of Attorney Swope last week was suppressed and it was not until Monday that it became generally known about the court house. Commissioner McDannell said this morning the matter had not been mentioned to reporters because he "didn't think it was news."

Accusations Not Unexpected

Baltzley's accusations and den and for explanations were not unexpected this morning. The matter was opened after the minutes of last week's session had been read by Clerk Winfield G. Horner, whom President Baltzley later accused of keeping information concerning the anticipated salary raise from him. The minutes covered the meeting at which the Swope resignation was read and his salary raise voted.

"They sound good, don't they?" asked President Baltzley, who later charged that the minutes had been dictated by Solicitor Swope. Horner denied the charge. Benner remarked that they "sounded all right" to him. In the minutes it was stated that Swope's resignation had been accepted. Baltzley demanded to know who had made and seconded the motion and it developed that no motion had been made on the matter.

Baltzley accused Benner and McDannell of having the plan for the salary advancement all "fixed up" before coming to last week's session. He reminded them that he had begged to have the question postponed for a week so that he would have time to consider the matter. Baltzley declared that the matter had been rushed through to prevent him from having a chance to stop the move for the salary increase.

The name of S. S. Neely, Esq., attorney for the board of county auditors, was brought into the discussion and it was revealed that he had interceded with commissioners at a number of times since early spring of this year in behalf of a $300 raise for Swope. "Why is Neely so interested," Baltzley asked. "It's almost a mystery to me—but not entirely. We don't need Sam Neely to tell us what to pay our solicitor."

Questions Legality of Action

Baltzley stated that he seriously questioned the legality of the action taken last week and instructed Horner to enter his words on the minutes of the meeting. Benner said that the legality of the action should be "looked into."

Baltzley pointed out that "Even if it is legal, that doesn't make it right." Baltzley told the two other members of the board that all had opposed the salary raise last spring when it was first proposed and said that he had no knowledge that the two had changed their position.

Considerable attention was given by President Baltzley to the disregard for the established custom and courtesy in the commissioners' office of allowing the president, the leader of the majority party, to make the appointments that would be ratified by the other members. Republican appointments would be made by the majority members and democratic vacancies would be filled by McDannell. (Continued on second page)

WIDEN SEARCH FOR KIDNAPPER AND TACOMA BOY

Federal, State and City Officers Comb Western Part of Washington.

Tacoma, Wash., Dec. 29 (AP)—Search for Charles Mattson, 10, and the kidnapper who demanded $28,000 for his release was extended throughout western Washington Monday night by federal, city and state authorities, but orders to arrest an unidentified suspect suddenly were rescinded.

Secrecy closed tighter around the movements of officers, particularly those from the department of justice as Capt. Harry Snider, of the state patrol announced cancellation of an order to stop a sedan and hold its driver for questions.

First Order Called Mistake
The order, broadcast to all patrol cars, described the man as a partially demented former patient of Charles' father, Dr. W. W. Mattson, wealthy Tacoma physician.

Captain Snider said the order was issued "by mistake." He declined to explain further.

A Tacoma police official, declining to be named, said Charles' parents had been ordered to establish contact with the kidnapper, who seized the boy in his home Sunday night, through want ads in a Seattle newspaper.

Stolen Auto Also Sought
Search also went forward for an automobile registered in the name of A. J. Chitty, United States marshal, and stolen here thirty minutes after the kidnapping. Officers said it was possible the kidnapper had used the car in escaping.

All patrolmen were warned to use caution in stopping the machine for fear the thief, if involved in the kidnapping, might elect to "shoot it out."

U. S. Agents Move Secretly
Federal agents moved into the only major kidnapping of 1936 with the secrecy characteristic of their drive against the abductors of George Weyerhaeuser, who was held until payment of $200,000 ransom here a year and a half ago. Two men and a woman received long prison sentences for that crime and another man was sentenced for passing ransom bills.

The Mattson boy was abducted by a masked, armed man who invaded the living room of the family at 8:45 o'clock Sunday night. As he escaped with his prisoner, the kidnapper, described as swarthy, middle aged and black bearded, dropped a note demanding $28,000 ransom.

Directed to Use Old Bills
The Tacoma police official said this note outlined the want-ad contact procedure and directed $10,000 of the ransom be paid in $2 and $5 bills, the remainder in bills of $50 or over. All were ordered to be old and wrinkled.

In Tacoma, federal, state and city officers continued their search of land and water for the missing boy. Private boats carried searchers into lonely coves of Puget Sound, while police in automobiles and on foot scoured north Tacoma and the district surrounding the city.

Neither Harold Bird, police chief, nor C. S. Spear, department of justice agent, of Portland, would comment on results of the search.

All members of the family except Doctor Mattson remained in the house. The doctor performed a major operation at a Tacoma hospital Monday morning.

Previously he told reporters: "I'll do anything the police want. They are in charge."

Seizure of Charles was in direct contrast to the Weyerhaeuser kidnapping. Whereas the Weyerhaeuser kidnappers accomplished their purpose without raising an alarm for hours, the gunman who abducted Charles made no attempt at concealment.

He forced his way into the Mattson mansion by breaking panes of a French door, terrorizing William and Muriel Mattson, brother and sister of the boy, and a house guest, Virginia Chaffield, 16, then seized Charles and dashed out through the garden.

Behind him he left the kidnap note and a suddenly uttered phrase, "This place ought to be good for some money."

Before grabbing Charles, he had searched all four of the children for money. In the process, the mask slipped from his face, allowing them to get a close view of his features.

Far from being terrified, Charles started upstairs for his air rifle when he first saw his kidnapper's face at the door glass of his home, a family friend disclosed Monday.

nell, sole democratic member of the board.

That statement brought forth from Commissioner McDannell a complaint that he had been "put on the spot" in the matter of making democratic appointments, and that he had not been consulted or his advice asked except on few occasions. Baltzley replied that for years the minority member has been allowed to make appointments in his party and that was the reason McDannell had been asked to appoint an assessor from his party when a democrat left office in a township. He cited several instances in which McDannell's advice had been sought and followed in the matter of assessment reductions and other matters.

Little Business Transacted
Turning again to the question of Swope's salary, Baltzley said "The only time there is any grounds for raising a solicitor's salary is when any other capable attorney will not accept the position at the same price." He stated that there are "plenty of attorneys" here who would be glad for the post. Baltzley reminded Benner that they had agreed in advance on all appointments that were made at the beginning of the year. "The only decent thing to do was to consult me before you went ahead with that Swope raise," he said. "If Swope deserved the name of the party he claims, he wouldn't have allowed the commissioners to do such a thing," Baltzley charged.

Baltzley declared that commissioners' duties increased greatly during his term from 1932 to 1936 but that "no salary raise was asked." "We accepted the duties of our office and performed them to the best of our ability," Baltzley declared, and added "Swope was satisfied with $500 when he took the job last January."

The discussion occupied more than an hour and was the only matter of any importance to come before the board. A request was received from York Springs borough for county aid for street building work and the Mt. Pleasant township tax collector came before the board asking several exonerations. Bills were examined and other matters postponed until this afternoon's meeting.

Decision on Fate Of Chang Delayed

Nanking, Tuesday, Dec. 29 (AP).—The death of his only brother diverted Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek's attention temporarily today from the crisis through which China has just passed.

The government's military leader prepared to leave Nanking almost immediately for his birthplace, Fenghua, in Chekiang province, on receipt of news his elder brother, Chiang Hsiou, had died there suddenly.

Temporarily shelved was the question of pardon or punishment for Marshal Chang Hsueh-liang, leader of the two weeks' revolt in Shensi province which threatened to throw all China into chaos.

Marshal Chang, after holding the generalissimo and several of his aides captive for 13 days, suddenly lowered the flag of revolt and flew to Nanking to "face the music."

The generalissimo already has said he would recommend leniency for the penitent rebel and indicated he would be permitted to return to command of troops in the northwestern provinces. Marshal Chang remained in detention here at the residence of Dr. T. V. Soong, former minister of finance.

POPE REPORTED BY CALLERS AS 'VERY SERIOUS'

Calls in Aides for Talks, Although He Lies Motionless In Bed.

Vatican City, Dec. 29 (AP).—Pope Pius was described Monday night as being "in a very serious condition" by persons who visited the Vatican Monday.

They said they had gathered the impression in the Vatican that the Pope might pass away at any time, though they emphasized the nature of the Pontiff's illness did not obviate the possibility of his living for some days and possibly for months.

These persons were not received by the Pontiff himself, but talked lengthily with high prelates close to the Papal presence.

Pontiff Gravely Ill

Pope Pius, at last aware that he is gravely ill, was reported reliably to have told a prelate:

"In this condition I cannot be Pope; it is better that I die."

The prelate visited the Holy Father shortly after the Pope had suffered a slight hemorrhage in his paralyzed left leg. Physicians, however, said the hemorrhage was not so important to his condition as the spread of the paralysis and the Pontiff's uncertain heart action.

Realizes His Condition

His words were the first indication the 79-year-old Pope realized how acute his condition had become. Up until now he has insisted his illness was a passing ailment; that the pain which wrenches his whole left side was but temporary.

He called in Pietro Cardinal Piumasoni-Biondi, who had waited for many days for an audience on the problems of the Congregation for the Propagation of the Faith, which he heads.

Then he sent his blessing to 300 newlywed couples whom he was unable to receive. The Papal majordomo, Msgr. Aborio Mella, presented the couples with the Holy Father's gifts of rosaries, medals and booklets on matrimony.

Motionless on His Bed

His Holiness, lying motionless in a room flooded with brilliant sunshine, also received Eugenio Cardinal Pacelli, Papal Secretary of State, who alone has been supposed to confer with the ailing Pope.

Dr. Amanti Milani spent nearly five hours at his bedside during the day and members of the pontifical expressed deep concern that the Pope, whose paralysis now has spread from his legs along his left side and arm, had suffered a night of torturing pain.

The whole Vatican went about its day in a hushed and anxious atmosphere. At morning masses, prayers for the alleviation of the Pope's pain were added to the pleas that his life be spared.

New Year Eve Calls Off

Instead of going to the Vatican on New Year's Eve this year, members of the diplomatic corps accredited to the Holy See will be received by Cardinal Pacelli in St. John Lateran.

There they will attend a special New Year's Eve mass to be celebrated by the Papal Secretary of State.

Wings For Sally

by BAILEY WOLFE

SYNOPSIS: Philip Page, dark, handsome young publisher of the Warren Courier, loves thoughtful Sally Warren, the society editor. They are fighting to save McDonald, a discharged mill worker, who is on trial for burning the Palace theater. By saving dropping on and his employer, old Mr. Morris, who owns the theater and mill, Sally hears Benton say he has framed McDonald. She confronts Benton with this information, and he kidnaps her. Philip learns of Sally's disappearance, suspects Benton and starts the search.

Chapter 43

The Butler Gives a Clue

Philip left Mr. Warren at home, and went to the office, Sally had not been there since lunch, the rest of the office force assured him. The telephone rang and Philip answered it himself. It was Mr. Warren, saying that Sally was not at her aunt's house in the city.

"We must notify the police," said Mr. Warren in a voice that struggled to be calm.

"I'll drop by and talk to the chief," said Philip. "Then I'm going out to look for Sally myself. Don't worry—I'll find her."

Mary Morris had begged him to come back and stay with her, and although a visit to the Morris house was distasteful to Philip, because Mr. Morris had ordered him from the place in anger, Philip felt bound to see Mary before he went away for an indefinite length of time.

Mary, in a clinging negligee, was lying on the chaise longue in her own room. Dennison had brought Philip word at the door that Mary wanted him to come straight up. Now he hesitated on the threshold of her room, but she held out her hand to him.

"Darling Philip" she cried. "Come and sit beside me. My head aches so and my heart's beating like a trip-hammer. I was so frightened when I came home and found the doctor standing over father, and father looking so strange. If you hadn't come over when I called, I'd have died of fright and nervousness."

"Your father wouldn't want me here," said Philip. "I shan't stay here. Sally Warren is missing and I've got to search for her."

"Sally? Why, what could happen to Sally? She was here only tonight, to see father."

"What time?" demanded Philip eagerly.

"Shortly after eight, I think. I really don't know, except that Giles Benton and a friend of father's, a woman, had an engagement to see father at 8:30. Sally left as they came in."

"So Giles Benton was the last person to see your father before he had the stroke," speculated Philip. He got up. "I must go and speak to Dennison, then I'm leaving. I won't be back, but I'll call and see how your father is."

"And how I am?" Mary's lips were pointing like a child's.

"Yes," Philip smiled a little grimly. An hour ago Mary had been in hysterics and he had been looking for Sally because Mary wanted her. Now Mary had forgotten Sally. She seemed uninterested in Sally's disappearance. Philip excused Mary on the score of her father's illness.

Philip heads for Hillcrest. He found Dennison in the hall downstairs.

"Are you sure Miss Warren didn't go out with Mr. Benton tonight?" Philip asked sharply.

"No, sir. She left, I'd say half an hour before Mr. Benton and the lady, sir."

"One more thing, Dennison," Philip lowered his voice. "Was Mr. Benton angry when he left here?"

Dennison's face changed color. "I—I don't know, sir. I didn't show him out. He left—I heard the car start as I was on my way up the back stairs."

"Did anyone notify Mr. Benton that Mr. Morris was ill?"

"No, sir," Dennison looked away from Philip's steady gaze.

"Why not?" Dennison was silent. Philip went on impatiently. "There's something you're hiding, Dennison. You must tell me everything that happened here tonight. Miss Warren has disappeared and she was last seen here."

A look of genuine anxiety spread over Dennison's face.

"I didn't know. I'm very sorry, sir. I can't tell you how sorry," Miss Warren has been so kind—"

"What was it you kept back a while ago?" insisted Philip.

"Mr. Giles Benton was not called and told of Mr. Morris' illness because shortly after Mr. Benton left, sir, Mr. Morris called me and told me never to let that fellow, he called him, set foot on the place again."

When Philip left the Morris home, he headed his car directly for Hillcrest, where he knew Giles Benton had been staying for two days. He did not know what he hoped to find—certainly he had little hope of finding Sally there. But he was sure that if he could find Giles, he could also find Sally.

Four miles from Hillcrest, Philip passed a side road which, if he had followed it, would have led him directly to the lodge where Sally was imprisoned. But Philip did not even see the road. His eyes were on the Hillcrest highway, his thoughts wrestled with the problem of why Sally had been spirited away.

Sardines and Cheese

As Sally waited in the hot little bedroom of the hunting lodge for Sam to fetch her something to eat, she turned over in her mind schemes for getting tangible evidence against those who had imprisoned her. She was not concerned for herself. She did not believe they would dare to harm her in any way. They simply meant to get the blackmail money from Mr. Morris and escape, leaving her to get back to her friends as best she could.

Outside the window Sam hailed her.

"Hello, you up there!"

"Here!" called Sally. She peered out at the moonlit stretch of grass between the lodge and the woods. Sam was standing there with a small basket and a piece of cord in his hand.

"I've tied a rock to this end of the cord," he called up to her. "I'll throw it up to you. The basket's on the other end and you can pull it up. Look out for the rock."

He threw the stone with an expert hand. Sally drew back and it landed on the floor beside her.

"I've got it," she called. She began to pull the cord and finally drew the basket up to the window sill. She took it over to the light. There were two cans of sardines, a box of crackers, a piece of old cheese, two apples and a bottle of warm ginger ale. A can opener had been thoughtfully included. Sally was much too healthy and hungry to scorn the fare provided.

While she ate, washing down the food with the warm ginger ale, Sally planned what she should do next. The food had served to restore her confidence and reassure her as to Sam's good nature.

If she could only get Sam to talk to her, she might persuade him that it was to his best interests to come back to town with her and testify against his accomplices. She could promise to help him get out of his part in the crime against McDonald. But she couldn't talk to Sam from the second story window, shouting every word she had to say.

LOCAL CAGERS FACE TWO FOES

Maroon Basketeers Open Season at Harrisonburg, Virginia, Wednesday.

Following a week of vacation Gettysburg high school's basketball squad resumed practice Monday afternoon in preparation for games Wednesday and Thursday evenings at Harrisonburg, Virginia, and Charlestown, West Virginia, respectively.

The game at Harrisonburg was originally scheduled to be played on Thursday evening but was changed at the request of Faculty Manager Guile W. Lefever after conferring with Charlestown high authorities who agreed to a switch of the dates.

Coach George Forney will select eight players to make the trip but will not make known his selections, until after today's workout. The squad will be picked from Stock, Stanley, Everhart, Eugene Hartman, Carl Oyler, Duttera, Lefever, Wright, Maust, Martin, Swope and Hossler.

Bernie Stock, forward; Duttera, center, and Bob Lefever, guard, all veterans of last year's aggregation, are almost certain of starting posts. The other positions are still wide open and the Maroon mentor will not divulge his starting lineup to immediately before game time.

The team will travel in automobiles and will leave Wednesday morning for Harrisonburg. Following the game the group will remain over night in Harrisonburg and will journey to Charlestown on Thursday.

Nothing is known of the calibre of teams the locals will be forced to meet but the Maroons will undoubtedly meet two capable teams and are anticipating stiff games.

TWO COUNTY COUPLES OBSERVE ANNIVERSARIES

Two Adams county couples observed their golden wedding anniversaries Monday. They are Mr. and Mrs. E. A. Noel, 225 North street, McSherrystown, and Mr. and Mrs. Henry H. Basehoar, near Littlestown.

In commemoration of the wedding anniversary, of Mr. and Mrs. Noel, the holy sacrifice of the mass was offered at 7 o'clock Sunday morning in St. Mary's Catholic church, McSherrystown, by the Rev. Carl Longanbach, to invoke God's blessing on the aged couple. Many friends and relatives attended.

A turkey dinner was tendered Mr. and Mrs. Noel at their home, Sunday, by their sons.

Mr. and Mrs. Henry H. Basehoar quietly marked the fiftieth anniversary of their wedding Monday. No special observance of the occasion was planned. The couple spent the day at their home receiving the congratulations of their friends and relatives.

UNIQUE FISH HOSPITAL OPERATED IN GERMANY

Berlin (AP)—Poor fish in Germany with tummy aches are given a chance to get over it—unless they have swallowed hook, line and sinker.

A fish sanitarium, near Berlin, has had so many patients recently that doctors and nurses there believe they have gotten so much experience treating fish troubles that they can help the entire fish world along.

Just as any animal hospital operates, the fish hospital takes in sick "patients" and administers the proper number of doses until the "patient" has either recovered or stopped wiggling.

TEXAS RANGERS FIND OLD JAIL TREE

Harlingen, Tex. (AP)—A "jail tree," used by Texas rangers in turbulent border days, recently was discovered here and identified by a chain imbedded in the wood.

Rangers tethered prisoners to the "hitching post" with a chain until they could be removed to the county jail at Brownsville. The jail tree was surrounded by a corral.

RUMANIANS "CENSOR LAW"

Budapest (AP)—A paragraph advocating discrimination on the basis of race, nationality, and religion was eliminated by the cabinet from new laws governing the establishment of a Rumanian chamber of lawyers.

BIGLER CAGERS DIVIDE GAMES

Alumni Hoopsters Down Boys But High Girls Stage Big Rally to Win.

The Biglerville high school boys' and girls' varsity basketball teams split a double-header with the alumni teams Monday evening at Biglerville, the boys losing 37-14 and the girls winning, 36-33.

In the feature game the alumni boys presented a smooth working outfit and rolled up a 16-4 lead at half time which was never threatened.

A sensational last half rally after trailing 20-6 at half time, enabled the high school girls to win their third game in as many starts.

Out of the Past

Happenings of days gone by as chronicled in The Star and Sentinel and The Gettysburg

FIFTY YEARS AGO

Local Items: The rink was crowded Christmas afternoon and evening.

There was very little drunkenness
on Christmas, and only a few arrests. Our streets were unusually quiet.

Rev. W. R. H. Deatrick, formerly of this place, recently lectured in New Bloomfield on the Drama.

Mrs. Ambrose Schmidt, of Hanover, has purchased the Lott farm in Straban township, 175 acres, at private sale.

On Wednesday last, Mr. and Mrs.
Henry Schriver celebrated their golden wedding at their home in Hanover.

A fine Guernsey cow, for which he paid $101, died for Charles J.
Tyson, near Flora Dale, last week.
Jacob H. Gobrecht, Union township, has established a handsome carp pond, about 200 by 60 feet.

Persons desiring dry hickory or oak wood can be supplied by calling at this office.

John F. Sharets, Cumberland
township, has lost all his hogs (11)
by cholera; George P. Eyler, 12, and Joseph Witherow, 16 head.

Fox hunting is quite fashionable this winter. Riders and hounds are seen on the streets every few days,
and occasionally we hear of the capture of Reynard.

Marriages: Hoffe—Spangler—
Dec. 23, by Rev. J. U. Asper, Amos
A. Hoffe, of near Littlestown, to Miss Emma E. Spangler, of Mountjoy township.

Heller—Mummert—Dec. 19, by Rev. G. W. McSherry, Hiram A.
Heller, of near Biglerville, to Miss Mary E. Mummert, of Wrensville.

Lerew—Miller—Dec. 9, by Rev. W.
H. Herbert, Wm. O. Lerew to Miss Mary A. Miller, both of Latimore township.

Moore—Cassatt—Dec. 21, by Rev.
G. W. McSherry, Calvin P. Moore, of Mummaburg, to Miss S. Alice Cassatt, of Plainview.

Sanders—Thoman—Dec. 14, by Rev. J. A. Boll, William A. Sanders to Miss Mary C. Thoman, both of this county.

Schriver—Little—Dec. 23, at the residence of the bride's parents, by the Rev. D. W. Sollenberger, Francis R. Schriver to Miss Alice V. Little,
both of near Gettysburg.

Willett—Kopp—Dec. 23, by Rev.
J. A. Metzler, Dora W. Willett,
of Littlestown, to Miss Amelia Kopp,
of Hanover.

Pleasant Remembrance: Members of the Presbyterian congregation in this place have been very mindful of their pastor during the Christmas days—silver, china, useful and ornamental pictures, books, a new cook-stove, etc., have been received at the parsonage during the past week.

Sudden Death: The death of Miss Jenninia Hoffman was very sudden. She had not been feeling well for several days, but nothing serious was apprehended. She attended church on Sunday evening,
and retired feeling as well as usual.
Yesterday morning she arose at 5 o'clock to turn out the light and fell over dead.

Christmas: The sky and earth
and air of the day and night before Christmas gave every indication that propitious weather would almost certainly have to be omitted
from the Christmas calculations.
But, notwithstanding the sloppy and slippery streets and pavements, the murky, misty atmosphere, the snow
and rain of Friday, the streets,
stores and homes of our town showed that our people had determined to never mind the weather, but to have a happy, joyous, merry Christmas in spite of it. But fortunately this was one of those occasions
when all signs failed, and the "day of days" dawned bright and beautiful. The air was crisp, bracing and exhilarating, just cold enough to make every one feel bright and lively, and not too cold for out of door sports.

The public schools closed on Friday until January 3d, 1887. In several of the schools interesting Christmas exercises were held;

scholars and teachers exchanged gifts with each other. The usual examinations were postponed and will be held later in the season.

In the Churches

The Festival was observed on Christmas Eve by the Sunday schools of Christ church, the Presbyterian and St. James; and on Christmas day by the Reformed.
Pleasant exercises were arranged,
which the little folks hugely enjoyed.

At Christ church the teachers, parents and scholars met in the lecture room at 6 o'clock. After prayer, singing of Christmas hymns and remarks by Rev. Dr. Hay, Prof. E.
S. Breidenbaugh and Doctor Mc-Knight, tables were spread and ice cream, cake and oranges liberally dispensed.

On Christmas eve the Presbyterian Sunday school gathered at the parsonage, where presents were given the younger scholars and all had a good time.

Christmas eve the scholars of St.
James Lutheran church met in the lecture room, where fitting exercises were held and gifts distributed.

The Reformed and Catholic churches held services on Christmas day, and in the evening the Sunday school of the former held very interesting services, and the scholars were abundantly supplied with gifts.
The church was tastefully decorated.

In the afternoon our capital
Grand Army Band made the streets
resonant with their delightful strains. They serenaded several persons, and gave an open air concert in the square.

Mr. Chas. S. McCullough, the popular landlord of this place, recently presented Post 116, G. A. R., Harrisburg, Pa., with an owl shot
on the summit of Round Top. Prof.
J. Howard Wert delivered the presentation speech.

THE KING

The King rode out through the palace gate.

Where hand in hand stood Harry
and Kate,
And Harry said, touching his bowl-
er's brim,
"Ere comes the King! Long life to him!"

"'Ark to the cheers as 'e rides
along!
A fine brave sight to that 'appy
throne."

To the end of our days the greatest thing
We shall 'ave to boast is we've seen
the king.

"'E's the big event of our 'oliday!
'E's the 'ead and front of the world's display!
'E's the proudest memory we'll recall
And some day tell to our children
small."

"But the king can't ride on a
ha'p'ny bus
Nor share in the fun that belongs to us;
And he can't know what it means
to wait
For a look at the king at the palace gate."

"For 'e's the king, and 'e's the show;
Wherever 'e journeys 'is guards
must go!
An' 'e'll never know till 'e comes to die
The thrill of see the king go by."

MAJESTIC THEATRE

Joe E. Brown, comes to the Majestic theater Wednesday and Thursday in his latest Warner Bros. starring vehicle, "Polo Joe."

He plays the role of Joe Bolton, an American youth, who, after several years in China, returns home with a solemn-visaged valet—and an unbounded supply of tall tales. He returns to the arms of his adoring, gushing and disgustingly rich Aunt Minnie—who is a member of an extremely swanky polo-playing colony.
Joe at once falls violently in love with pretty Mary Hilton, a neighbor, who recognizes no hero but a polo-playing hero. Joe and his valet discuss the case in hand and decide that Joe must pose as a wow at polo. After that, he brags so much about his skill that he's finally shamed into becoming an active member of the local polo club.

Today's Talk

By George Matthew Adams

BY WHICH WE LIVE

I SHOULD like to pass on to you, who read this, a part of my inheritance
—the joy and spiritual profit, that I have received from the thoughts of Marcus Aurelius!

When Thomas Gataker was an old man, he decided that the best preparation for death would be to translate and give to the world a copious edition of this calm minded and beloved emperor's diary and thoughts.
And so today scholars give a place of honor to this work.

Near to my writing desk always lies handy a small blue-bound volume of the great mediator's thoughts "To Himself," prepared by Gerald H.
Rendall. "The thoughts of Marcus Aurelius," he says, "are among the surprises of literature." And so they are. To read him is to rise higher in self-respect and to evaluate life in terms of usefulness.

All his meditations seemed to evolve about "the god within." And his Stoic creed, about which all else centered, was this—"The world is one living whole, of which each man is a living part." And so into his life there came a calm, a peaceful philosophy by which he lived. Even death he looked upon as but "an incident in the flow of being."

He suggested giving up the prizing of many things, and the dismissal of envy, grudges and worry over people who would want to rob one of possessions. He believed in self-reasoning, and that a man should "rise superior and free" in his dealings with others.

He admonishes against imagining yourself as having what you have not, but taking into full account the fine things that you do possess. But he is forever cautioning against gaining so much that it is apt to bring on uneasiness of mind. Like Burton in his beautiful poem "Kasidah," he urges self-approval.

"Live life out unrebillionally in perfect peace, though the whole world bawl its wishes at you, yes, though wild beasts tear limb by limb this material integument of flesh," he says, and again he writes in this diary of his; that the way to perfection is—"to live out each day as one's last with no fever, nor torpor, and no acting a part."

To read Marcus Aurelius is to gain insight into a calmer, steeper, and braver course of life, and to more fully realize the futility of any gain that does not enrich the inner life and enlarge one's conception of life itself.

For A Host Of Activities

PATTERN 9115

A frock to "cut a fine figure" anywhere—this delightful all-purpose style! See how clever the cut of the trim skirt that flares forth so gracefully, setting off a pair of trim ankles. Notice the up-to-the-minute sleeves, fashionably fluted at the shoulder, and long or short according to taste! Notice the youthfully high waistline, pointed up by radiating tucks. Note, too, the choice of a high-rising belt, or one placed lower down. Teens and Twenties will love the charm of a turn-back collar that may be edged with a bit of matching fabric or contrasting grosgrain.
Pattern 9115 is a simple frock to

PATTERN 9117

Here's a fetching frock that any little girl will be proud to wear on all occasions, from hoop-rolling to more sedate school hours! Mother will like Pattern 9117, too—for it may be cut and finished in the briefest
of time, aided by the helpful instructions of its accompanying complete diagrammed sew chart. A sturdy style is this simple but effective frock, designed to stand up well under the hard wear a "two to ten"
gives her clothes! See the dainty yoke, trim front and back panels, and long or short puffed sleeves! They give a maximum of youthful flattering, 'specially when topped by a gay Eton collar hat makes kiddies look like young angels. Settle the fabric question by choosing wool or cotton challis, percale, gingham, or cham-bray, in colorful checks or prints.

Pattern 9117 may be ordered only in sizes 2, 4, 6, 8 and 10. Size 6 requires 2½ yards 36-inch fabric.

COWS ON PUMPKIN DIET
IN THE DROUGHT AREA
Springfield, Mo. (AP)—Turnips
and pumpkins are the latest on the dairy cow's menu.

Farmers turned to them after drought cut the supply of normal dairy foods. The vegetables are cut in small pieces and mixed with grain as in the common method of feeding silage. Once cows get accustomed to the mixture, farmers report, they clean it up readily.

FIND BODIES OF
12 IN AIR LINER
IN CAL. RAVINE9 Passengers, 3 Crew
Members Crushed
After Ship Hits
Mountain.

Burbank, Cal., Dec. 29 (AP).—
Crushed in the wreckage of a United Airlines transport plane, the bodies of 12 occupants of the giant air liner were found late Monday in a brush-tangled ravine about 20 miles northwest of here.

The plane, with nine passengers and a crew of three, disappeared in a rainstorm Sunday night on a trip
from San Francisco to Burbank.

A posse of ground searchers came upon the bodies after several hours of tortuous climbing through ravines and over the mountains to the spot where the twisted wreckage of the plane had been sighted from the air.

Wings Lay Atop Ridge
The wings of the twin-motored plane lay atop a ridge on the slope of Oak mountain, about five miles from Saugus.

Down in a narrow canyon rested
what remained of the plane's fuselage, the bodies of nine passengers and three crew members crushed
within the mass of metal.

United Airlines officials said that Pilot Edwin W. Blom apparently struck the top of Oak mountain while trying to reach an open landing place in the San Fernando valley, just two ridges away.

Plane Hurtled Down Slope
The ship then hurtled down the slope, shearing through scrub oak trees which lay broken and twisted along its disastrous trail.

For a distance of almost 1,000
yard pieces of fuselage were strewn.
The body of the ship apparently struck the bottom of the ravine with terrific force, bounced a short distance up the slope of the gulch and slid back to the bottom where searchers found the broken and shapeless hulk, scarcely resembling a plane.

The nose of the ship as far back as the pilot's cabin was smashed to pieces. Within was the body of Copilot Robert McLean.

The body of Blom hung from an opened door.
